Dear Sir/Madam

Ref: Trade Advice Notice on Spinetoram in the product Success Neo Insecticide

1. About Grain Trade Australia & Pulse Australia

Grain Trade Australia (GTA) is the focal point for the commercial grains industry within Australia. It facilitates trade and works to provide an efficient, equitable and open trading environment by providing leadership, advocacy and commercial services to the Australian grain value chain. GTA members are responsible for over 95% of all grain storage and freight movements made each year in Australia. Over 95% of the grain contracts executed in Australia each year refer to GTA grain standards and/or trade rules. GTA members are drawn from all sectors of the grain value chain from production to domestic end users and exporters. GTA members are involved in grain trading activities, grain storage, grain for human consumption and stock feed milling. A list of all members is attached.

Pulse Australia is the peak industry body that represents all sectors of the pulse industry in Australia, from growers and agronomists through to researchers, merchants, traders and exporters. Pulse Australia provides coordinated leadership to the Australian pulse industry and facilitates activities that achieve improved profitability for all sectors of the pulse industry. It undertakes a market support role by providing a single voice for industry in the areas of market access and development, negotiating with governments and other industry bodies both domestically and internationally.

Within this context, GTA and Pulse Australia provides comment on the abovementioned Trade Advice Notice (TAN) regarding varying the registration of the product Success Neo Insecticide for use on sorghum, pulses and cotton.

2. Concerns with the proposed variation on use in Sorghum – GTA

Australia is a significant exporter of grain sorghum to many overseas markets. As noted in the TAN "In 2013–14, exports of sorghum totalled 701 kt and were valued at $253 m. Major export markets for Australian sorghum were China, Japan, Taiwan and New Zealand".

In recent years, average annual sorghum production has been 1.8m tonnes. Since 2011, more than 50% of the sorghum produced in each year has been exported.

Page 7 of the TAN highlights the potential residues arising from the proposed use "the combined spinosad residue data, scaled for the proposed application rate for spinetoram in sorghum, gives the following data set: <0.01 (3), 0.011, 0.015, 0.023, 0.03, 0.049, 0.053, and 0.064 mg/kg. An MRL of 0.2 mg/kg is proposed for spinetoram in sorghum, in conjunction with a 14-day harvest withholding period".

Page 14 of the TAN states "There are potential risks to trade in sorghum, as the major export destinations China, Taiwan and Japan do not appear to have relevant standards established".

As outlined in the TAN the proposed use on sorghum will potentially lead to finite levels of spinetoram residues on the harvested sorghum commodity. The residues cited resulting from the trial treatments in the TAN are of concern to the Australian grain industry based on the proposed MRL changes.

The concerns are summarised below for key Australian export markets of sorghum:

China

- China has no MRL for sorghum and therefore a zero tolerance applies.

Codex

- There is no Codex MRL for sorghum. Several minor markets of Australian sorghum default to Codex. If there is no Codex MRL, a default of 0.01ppm or zero may apply, depending on the market. This default level is lower than the proposed Australian MRL.

European Union

- The European Union has an MRL of 0.05mg/kg for sorghum, significantly lower than the proposed Australian MRL.

Japan

- Can be a significant market for Australian sorghum.
- Does not have a specific MRL for spinetoram, however a default level of 0.01mg/kg is thought to apply. This is lower than the proposed Australian MRL.

New Zealand

- Accepts Australian MRLs under the Trans-Tasman Mutual Recognition Agreement. However it is understood a default level of 0.1mg/kg currently applies.

Taiwan

- An MRL of 0.01mg/kg is thought to apply.

Processed Products (e.g., Dried Distillers Grain)

- It does not appear that any residue studies on processed products have been done in the EU.
- While DDG is currently almost exclusively sold for stockfeed, research is occurring to explore value adding pathways such as human consumption and films in food packaging.
- The impacts of residues on DDG (and potential impact on yeast functionality) needs to be determined in order to comment on market acceptability.

Other Current and Potential Markets

- Significant research is being conducted into developing human consumption products for sorghum. This will potentially expand the range of markets (unknown at present) for Australian sorghum.
- A number of African countries take small volumes of Australian sorghum for brewing for human consumption. Several defer to Codex. In addition it is unclear if residues are likely to arise as a result of this human consumption use.
- It is vital that appropriate MRLs are in place in those markets before exports occur.

In general the change in registration status will potentially lead to a greater number of detectable levels of spinetoram on shipments and detection at levels higher than those MRLs in many export markets. This will increase the risk of cargo rejection in markets as listed above.

3. Proposed Use on Pulses – GTA and Pulse Australia

GTA and Pulse Australia support the proposed registration and MRL changes for pulses. For pulses, this support arises for various reasons, including:

- The residues present in the submitted studies were <0.01 mg/kg i.e. below the limit of quantitation, and as such do not pose a trade risk.
- A chemically similar product, spinosad, has been registered and used in pulses (primarily chickpea) in the past with no MRL or trade issues that we are aware of.
- The products used will primarily be in the northern grains region and on chickpea, with a much smaller use on mungbean, adzuki bean and navy bean. All traders currently involved in these markets are well practiced in understanding MRL and trade risks as related to their clients.

- The pulse industry is currently overly reliant on a single product (trade name Altacor) and have experienced significant product shortages in the last two seasons, which increases the risk of producers using products off label.
- The addition of another registered product will be a positive move for the industry in terms of:
 - Resistance management
 - Product supply
 - Providing producers with registered options.

4. Proposed Use on Cotton - GTA

GTA has no concerns with the proposed changes for cotton.

5. Conclusion

The Australian grain industry prides itself on meeting customer and regulatory requirements and implements a range of measures to ensure exports are compliant. Based on the information provided in the TAN, the proposed registration of spinetoram on sorghum presents an unacceptable risk to that trade which at present cannot be mitigated by measures adopted by the Australian grain industry.

Given the potential for residues to arise exceeding several key market MRLs for spinetoram, the Australian grain industry opposes the proposed variation to the registration of spinetoram on sorghum.

The proposed changes for pulses and cotton are supported.

Thank you for your consideration of this response.
