Dear Sir/Madam

RE: Trade Advice Notice Saflufenacil in the Product Sharpen WG Herbicide

1. About Grain Trade Australia

Grain Trade Australia (GTA) is the focal point for the commercial grains industry within Australia. It facilitates trade and works to provide an efficient, equitable and open trading environment by providing leadership, advocacy and commercial services to the Australian grain value chain.

GTA members are responsible for over 95% of all grain storage and freight movements made each year in Australia. Over 95% of the grain contracts executed in Australia each year refer to GTA grain standards and/or trade rules.

GTA members are drawn from all sectors of the grain value chain from production to domestic end users and exporters. GTA members are involved in grain trading activities, grain storage, grain for human consumption and stock feed milling. A list of all members is attached.

Within this context, GTA provides comment on the abovementioned Trade Advice Notice (TAN) regarding varying the registration of the product Sharpen WG Herbicide.

2. Concerns with the proposed variation on use in Cereals

As noted in the TAN, Australia is a significant exporter of cereal grains (wheat and barley) to many markets throughout Asia, Europe and the Pacific. In supplying those markets, the Australian grain industry has a commitment to not only supply a quality product, but also to comply with relevant international and national regulations relating to chemical residues.

It is noted in the TAN "BASF wish to add late season uses on cereals (wheat, barley and triticale).

*It is proposed that the current MRL of 0.03 mg/kg for Saflufenacil on GC 0080 cereal grains be increased to 0.2 mg/kg.

Saflufenacil residues in wheat, barley and oat grain from Australian trials at 27–68 days after treatment at 23.8–34 g ai/ha applied at BBCH 73–83 were <0.010 (5), <0.0174 (2), 0.010 (2), 0.011 (2), 0.012 (2), 0.014, 0.016, 0.051 and 0.11 mg/kg."

As outlined in the TAN the proposed use will lead to Saflufenacil residues on the harvested commodity. The residues cited resulting from the trial treatments in the TAN are of concern to the Australian grain industry based on the proposed MRL changes.

Clarification is required on the label versus the proposed usage pattern. The label states the proposed usage is for "Crop topping in Wheat, Barley and Triticale" yet the residue trials have been done on wheat, barley and oats. Industry understands that oats and triticale may have differing crop growing habits and seeks clarification of the suitability of the oat trials for triticale, and the label directions for the respective cereal crops being proposed under this TAN.

The concerns regarding impacts of the revised Australian MRL are summarised below for some key Australian export markets of wheat and barley, noting that the highest trial data was 0.11ppm (Triticale is not exported to any extent and thus not included in this list):

China

- China has no MRL for wheat or barley and therefore a zero tolerance applies. While it may consider deferring to Codex in a dispute situation, the risk of this “not occurring” is unacceptable to the trade.
- China is a significant importer of Australian wheat and barley.
- The proposed changes are a concern for exports to this market.

European Union

- The EU MRL is 0.03ppm, which is the current MRL in Australia.
- The proposed change in usage and resultant MRL levels potentially arising are a concern for exports to the EU for durum and barley.

Gulf Cooperation Council

- Various markets for wheat and barley exist in countries that comply with GCC regulations.
- There is no MRL for wheat or barley in these markets and a default MRL does not apply.
- The proposed changes are a concern for exports to the countries within the GCC.

Indonesia

- Indonesia does not have an MRL for Saflufenacil and a default MRL does not apply.
- This is a significant market for wheat and the proposed change in usage pattern and resultant potential residues arising are a concern to this market.

Japan

- The Japan MRL for cereals is 0.03mg/kg.
- As noted in the TAN, while the applicant has indicated that they are applying for import tolerances in Japan for wheat, barley and animal commodities at the same level as the US MRLs (which would remove industry concerns for wheat and barley), this process is expected to take significantly longer than the change in Australian usage/MRL. This would place exports at risk until those changes in Japan were approved.
- The proposed change in usage and resultant MRL levels potentially arising are a concern for wheat and barley which are significant exports to Japan.

Malaysia

- Malaysia is a significant importer of Australian wheat and defaults to Codex (0.01mg/kg) for Saflufenacil.
- The proposed changes are a concern for exports to this market.

South Korea

- While the TAN states there is no MRL in South Korea, industry advice is the MRL is 0.03mg/kg.
- Nevertheless, if there is no MRL (or an MRL of 0.03mg/kg applies), the proposed change in usage pattern and resultant potential residues arising are a concern to this significant market of Australian wheat.

Vietnam

- Vietnam does not have an MRL for Saflufenacil for wheat or barley and has not officially stated they will accept Codex under a deferral policy.
- Vietnam is a significant wheat and barley export market for Australia.
- The proposed changes are a concern for exports to this market.

Codex

- As stated in the TAN the Codex MRL for cereal grain is 0.01mg/kg.
- Several markets default to Codex. For those markets, this limit will therefore apply.
- The Codex level is significantly lower than the proposed Australian MRL and potential residues arising from the revised usage pattern.
- It is noted in the TAN that “the applicant has also stated that the 2016 JMPR will be considering new uses on cereals (desiccant uses) and animal products”. The timeframe for adoption of any new Codex MRL, assuming it would be equivalent to the Australian MRL, is unknown. Therefore while we acknowledge this progress, until the final MRL as recommended by JMPR and the timeframe for adoption is known, an unacceptable risk of market violations occurs for those markets defaulting/accepting the Codex MRL.

3. Concerns with the proposed variation on use in Pulses

The Indian sub-continent (India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh) is the world's largest consumer and importer of pulses. It is Australia's biggest and most important pulse market.

As with cereals, there are risks associated with the revised usage pattern for Saflufenacil on pulses, with some comments outlined below for these markets within the Indian sub-continent. Unless listed, several of these markets import a range of pulses in any year, depending on a range of factors.

Bangladesh

- Bangladesh is a major market for Australian pulses.
- There is no MRL in this market for Saflufenacil.
- They fully defer to Codex and thus this market is not an issue.

Egypt

- The market for faba bean, is more limited than other food pulses, and is largely restricted to the Middle East, principally Egypt.
- Egypt adopts the Codex MRL of 0.3mg/kg.
- There are no concerns with the proposed change in usage pattern for Saflufenacil in this market.

EU

- Except for faba beans, all other pulse MRLs in the EU (some at the LOD) are lower than the proposed revised Australian MRL.
- While not a significant market for pulses, given the container trade to this market and the difficulty of segregation of stock there will be risks associated with exporting pulses to the EU following a change in usage pattern.

India

- India takes a range of Australian pulses.
- India defaults to the Codex MRL of 0.3mg/kg for all pulses.
- There are no concerns with the proposed change in usage pattern for Saflufenacil in this market.

Pakistan

- Pakistan is a major market for Australian pulses.
- There is no MRL in Pakistan for Saflufenacil.
- Pakistan defers to Codex and therefore there are no concerns with the proposed change in usage pattern for Saflufenacil in this market.

Sri Lanka

- Sri Lanka is a major market for Australian pulses.
- There is no MRL in this market for Saflufenacil.
- Unconfirmed reports are that they fully defer to Codex.

Codex

- As noted in the TAN, the MRL for all pulses is 0.3mg/kg.
- This level is higher than the proposed MRL to be adopted in Australia of 0.2mg/kg.
- Further information on the applicability of the proposed MRL of 0.2mg/kg on other pulses exported from Australia (e.g., lentils, lupins) is required before a full determination can be made on the suitability of this for all pulses MRL and the ability of industry to implement measures to meet the Codex MRL in specific markets.

Sweet Lupins

- Export markets for Australian sweet lupin are distinctly different to those for other pulses and include Spain and South Korea for intensive animal feeds, and aquaculture markets in Scandinavia and Indonesia.
- Scandinavia and Spain default to the EU MRL for lupins of 0.03mg/kg.
- Indonesia and South Korea do not have an MRL.
- Therefore exports of sweet lupins to these markets are a risk to industry under the proposal.

4. Conclusion

GTA makes no comment on the proposed change in usage pattern or MRLs for straw, lucerne or animal commodities.

In general it could be assumed that the revised usage pattern will potentially lead to residues above many export market MRLs for Australian wheat and barley. While industry implements various strategies to manage market requirements such as segregations and Commodity Vendor Declarations where relevant, the number of markets receiving wheat and barley will not enable industry to implement adequate numbers of segregations to meet the risk of the revised usage pattern for Saflufenacil.

There are also some concerns with pulse exports from Australia and we request clarification on the issue listed above under the heading Codex.

The Australian grain industry prides itself on meeting customer and regulatory requirements and implements a range of measures to ensure exports are compliant. Based on the information provided in the TAN, the proposed variation to the use of Saflufenacil presents an unacceptable risk to that trade which at present cannot be mitigated by measures adopted by the Australian grain industry.

Given the potential for residues to arise exceeding several key market MRLs for Saflufenacil, GTA opposes the proposed variation to the registration of Saflufenacil on wheat, barley and pulses.

Thank you for your consideration of this response.

Yours sincerely

Peter Reading
