Gene Technology Review
Department of Health
MDP 1060
GPO Box 9848
CANBERRA ACT 2601

Dear Sir,

Re: 2017 Review of the National Gene Technology Regulatory Scheme

Grain Trade Australia (GTA) appreciates the opportunity to provide this submission to the Department of Health's Review of the National Gene Technology Regulatory Scheme. GTA supports the importance of a functioning regulatory system for gene technology and believes that the Office Gene Technology Regulator (OGTR) and the supporting legislation is an effective and efficient system.

Gene technology is an important issue for the grains industry and GTA has been actively involved in industry discussions on this issue globally via membership of the International Grain Trade Coalition (IGTC) and domestically via the GTA Technical Committee on Plant Breeding Innovation that brings together representatives from across the Australian grain and seed value chain.

About GTA

Grain Trade Australia (GTA) is the focal point for the commercial grains industry within Australia. It facilitates trade and works to provide an efficient, equitable and open trading environment by providing leadership, advocacy and commercial services to the Australian grain value chain.

GTA members are responsible for over 95% of all grain storage and freight movements made each year in Australia. Over 95% of the grain contracts executed in Australia each year refer to GTA grain standards and/or trade rules.

GTA members are drawn from all sectors of the grain value chain from production to domestic end users and exporters. GTA members are involved in grain trading activities, grain storage, grain for human consumption and stock feed milling. A list of all members is attached.

Thus, this submission is made within this context and focuses on the options from a facilitation of trade perspective. As such, GTA's submission comments only on the options regarding regulation of new technologies and does not comment on the 'other considerations' raised in the discussion paper.

GTA gene technology policy

GTA supports research utilising plant breeding innovation to enhance the productive capacity of Australian grain producers.

GTA supports the commercial release and trade of grain from Genetically Modified (GM) and other innovative breeding techniques where this has been approved for commercial release by the Office of Gene Technology Regulator (OGTR) and other relevant Federal, State and Territory regulators.

The GTA policy and aligned processes are designed to assist to deliver confidence to the industry, governments and the community that market access will be maintained or enhanced and that, if required, there is market choice for the domestic and global grain trade supply chains. GTA works with the industry to develop and maintain the “Delivering Market Choice with GM Crops” Framework that brings together the industry’s practices and protocols that industry requires to be satisfied are in place to enable the seamless development, commercial release and trade of GM grain.

The National Gene Technology Regulatory Scheme

GTA supports the National Gene Technology Regulatory Scheme (Scheme) and believes that it has been effective in providing certainty and confidence to the industry and community in relation to GM crops. GTA also believes that Australia is seen as a model for other parts of the world in terms of its approach and regulatory outcomes. It is critical for the grains industry that there are effectively functioning regulatory systems in the countries with which it trades.

GTA supports the current scope of the Scheme i.e. application to human health and environment.

GTA does, however, believe that the Scheme could be improved through the adoption of a “Guiding Principle’ which gave greater flexibility to the OGTR to be able to apply the regulation differently based on relative risks. The current scheme has a one size fits all approach, however, there are significant differences in the potential risks to human health and environment depending on the technology and where it is being applied. GTA believes that the objectives of the Scheme could be delivered more efficiently and cost effectively if OGTR had risk based flexibility in the application of the regulation.

GTA would also encourage OGTR to maintain a close involvement with international partners in the regulatory environment and to remain engaged with global initiatives.

A major challenge for the global grain trade is the lack of consistency in regulations regarding gene technology regulation globally. GTA supports the harmonisation of regulation and encourages Australia to remain involved in international forums on gene technology related issues including Cartagena biosafety protocol, low level presence, regulation of new technologies and other similar initiatives.

GTA works with the International Grain Trade Coalition (IGTC) to try and achieve global harmonisation in the approach to regulating such activities. The main aim of IGTC efforts is to achieve international alignment, i.e. adoption of a similar approach across jurisdictions leading to legal certainty as this will provide for the lowest chance of trade disruptions. Alignment and regulatory coherence will assist governments to avoid unnecessarily eroding the value of the innovation and/or driving up costs and complexity in the global food system.

GTA provided a submission to the recent OGTR discussion paper on options for regulating new technologies and supported Option 4 as the preferred option for the industry i.e. to exclude certain new technologies from regulation based on the outcomes they produce. GTA supports the principle that plants developed through New Breeding Technologies (NBTs) should not be differentially regulated if they are similar to, or indistinguishable from, those that could have been produced through earlier breeding methods and where the risks to the environment or human health posed by products developed using such techniques are comparable to those of earlier (non-regulated by the OGTR) breeding methods.

GTA believes that this approach will provide clarity and certainty to the industry which are key requirements to the facilitation of an efficient trade environment. Furthermore, GTA believes that considerable complexities for the trade could occur where it may not be possible to detect products which have been derived from the application and use of new breeding technologies.

GTA believes that innovation is important in maintaining the competitiveness of the industry and that NBTs have a key role to play in promoting innovation.

GTA cannot comment on some of the specific issues raised in the background paper, nor operational improvements that could be made. However, recognises that some of its members who have had direct dealings with the OGTR/legislation may do so in individual submissions.

Conclusion

GTA believes that Australia has a world class regulatory system for gene technology, however, also sees that there are opportunities to improve the efficiency and reduce costs through providing increased risk based flexibility to the Regulator in how the Scheme is applied.

GTA recognises the risks of inconsistencies between regulatory frameworks in global markets and that this is a major issue impacting the global grain trade today. GTA encourages the Australian Government to stay engaged and continue to seek harmonisation in regulation of gene technologies.

Thank you for your consideration of this submission.
