RE: Proposed Amendments to the Gene Technology Regulations 2001.

Dear Sir/Madam,

Thank for the opportunity to make a submission on Proposed Amendments to the Gene Technology Regulations 2001.

1. About Grain Trade Australia

Grain Trade Australia (GTA) is the leading post-farm gate industry association in the Australian grain sector, representing over 295 member organisations (\(Link:here\) and attached) across trading, storage, handling, processing, and logistics. Their businesses range from regional family businesses to large national and international trading/storage and handling companies who are involved in grain trading activities, grain storage, grain marketing advisory services, processing grain for human consumption and stock feed milling. GTA Members are substantial employers, from the farm gate through to end point consumption, and notably in rural and regional Australia.

GTA acknowledges the potential for gene technologies including GM and gene-edited crops to deliver benefits for Australian farmers, the environment and consumers in Australia and globally, contributing to future global security.

GTA's core purpose is to facilitate efficient, transparent, and competitive grain trade, domestically and internationally. Its products and services, including the Australia Grain Industry Code of Practice, provides a self-regulatory framework across the grain industry to facilitate and promote the trade of grain within the Australian grain value chain.

2. Grain Industry Stewardship

GTA's Plant Breeding Innovation Committee provides advice and input in relation to new breeding technologies (NBTs). In relation to plant breeding innovation, GTA has developed the:

- Market Choice Framework for GM Crops; and
- Grain Industry Stewardship Framework for New Technologies where Schedule 1 deals with new breeding technologies.

These tools have been developed to ensure the introduction of products from these technologies into the supply chain is undertaken in a manner that does not disrupt trade.

GTA is also actively involved in industry discussions on these issues globally via membership of the International Grain Trade Coalition (IGTC), with harmonising of regulations a key focus. GTA is currently President of the IGTC.

GTA appreciates the opportunity to provide this submission and notes that comments are focused on the principles and integration of products from these technologies into the supply chain once approved. Individual GTA members, technology proponents and groups such as CropLife Australia may provide comment on the operational aspects of the regulations.

GTA notes that this consultation is in regard to amendments to the regulations that follows reviews of the Gene Technology Act 2000 (Review) and support the changes in the draft Bill which will implement the recommendations of these reviews.

3. Comments on the proposed amendments to the Gene Technology regulations 2001

GTA support in principle the proposed amendments to the Gene Technology Act (Act). However, GTA is concerned with the slow pace to implement the recommendations of the Review. GTA believes this progress is critical to ensure the Act is modernised and future proofed and aligned with science and risk-based set of principles. GTA believes it is very important that the scheme is flexible and able to deal with future developments and challenges such as gene-edited crops.

GTA recognises the need for the proposed amendments to the regulations to create alignment between the regulations and Act and other related legislation. However, while we welcome and encourage the Government to move forward with the Review's recommendations, we are concerned that some elements of the proposed amendments to the regulations are not aligned with outcomes sought through the Act review. This includes:

- Lack of coordinated consultation and reform across policy instruments is resulting in regulatory uncertainty and misalignment.
- A lack of clarity or transparency in regard to the Government's approach to further exclusions via Schedule 1 that would enable other forms of technologies that create outcomes that are indistinguishable from conventional breeding to be exempted as GMOs in a similar fashion to SDN-1 approaches.

Specifically, the use of the GM register for gene-edited products risks introducing unnecessary complexity into the existing regulatory framework and may create misalignment with GM food definitions under FSANZ. GTA does not consider listing gene-edited products on the GM Register to be warranted where the resulting products are indistinguishable from those developed through conventional breeding. Regulating such products based solely on the technique used, rather than the characteristics and risk profile of the final product undermines the principle of risk-proportionate regulation and is inconsistent with contemporary scientific assessment frameworks. GTA believes that this approach will potentially cause confusion with trading partners particularly where countries have developed permissive pathways based on product not process.

The delay in implementing the Review recommendations and potential misalignment with the proposed changes to regulations has the potential to impact productivity through innovations not being brought to market with subsequent potential loss of investment in research and development.

GTA would encourage the Government to address these implementation delays as a matter of urgency.

GTA welcomes the intent to improve clarity through changes to definitions, however, we note that the proposed framework refers to concepts such as 'novelty' that are not clearly defined and may not be aligned with the FSANZ definition. This lack of clarity and potential inconsistency around underpinning concepts has likely potential to result in uncertainty and create risk for technology developers and the grain industry.

Clarity is particularly important in relation to technologies such as gene-editing where products can be indistinguishable from conventional products and do not contain any foreign DNA. Australia uses a clear, science-based definition of 'novel DNA' in the Food Standards Code for food safety regulation; however, this is not necessarily reflected in other related regulatory approaches.

The FSANZ definition focuses on the product outcome, not the process (breeding technology) used. GTA would encourage the Government to ensure that there is alignment across definitions and that definitions are clear, risk-based and science-based.

GTA would also encourage the Government to provide greater clarity around gene-edited technology. While there is not global harmonisation at this point of time, many Governments globally, including in some of Australia's major trading partners, have moved to exempt products developed through gene-editing where these do not contain any foreign DNA.

The lack of a clear policy for products developed with gene-editing technologies risks creating regulatory barriers and creating trade and market risks for the grain industry.

GTA supports the proposal that risks already assessed by other regulators (such as food safety or chemical use) should not be reassessed under gene technology laws. GTA encourages Government ensure that there is clear guidance in relation to and recognition of roles of the various regulators so that there is not duplication which could lead to unnecessary costs increase as well as regulatory uncertainty and delays.

GTA supports the risk-tiering framework where dealings with GMOs would be classified into authorisation pathways according to the level of risk they pose. GTA encourages the Government to ensure that implementation of this model is done in a manner that ensures flexibility, simplicity and efficiency.

4. Summary

GTA welcomes Government commitment to progressing the outcomes of the Third Review. However, it is concerned that further delays in advancing the agenda in a comprehensive and coordinated manner may result in misalignment, increased risk and unintended additional regulatory burden.

GTA supports a risk and science-based approach to modernise the ACT and associated regulations to ensure the gene technology regulatory framework is fit for purpose now and into the future. However, GTA remains frustrated at the length of time taken to progress the Review's outcomes and encourages the Government to prioritise timely action.

We ask that you keep us informed and updated on the Proposed Amendments to the Gene Technology Regulations. Please do not hesitate to contact GTA at any stage.

Yours faithfully,

Pat O'Shannassy
Chief Executive Officer
