RE: GTA Submission – Potential regulatory options for agricultural emissions inhibitor products in Australia

1. Introduction

Grain Trade Australia (GTA) and National Working Party on Grain Protection (NWPGP) [GTA] welcomes the opportunity to provide feedback on the Potential regulatory options for agricultural emissions inhibitor (AEIs) products in Australia. GTA, along with other industry organisations, have previously written to and met with the Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry (DAFF) and Agvet Chemicals to seek to identify the suitable department and key contacts who can take carriage and responsibility for providing advice on potential market access issues and regulations in Australia for nitrification and urease inhibitors.

It is therefore encouraging DAFF have released this discussion paper seeking to address the many issues on this topic and of those raised in our correspondence.

GTA supports the adoption of regulations that protects Australian agriculture, consumers, the environment and market access for domestic and export trade. Effective regulation is essential to maintaining the reputation, productivity and competitiveness of Australia's grain industry and the broader agricultural sector.

It is important regulations are risk-based, based on science, proportionate to the identified risk and able to be enforced. Regulations should improve regulatory efficiency and avoid unnecessary regulatory burden and compliance costs on industry.

With the above in mind, GTA makes this submission on the need for and proposed regulatory setting process. No comment is made on the efficacy of AEIs, their purpose and proposed use in Australia, industry communication on benefits of uptake of these products.

2. About GTA and the NWPGP

2.1 GTA

Grain Trade Australia (GTA) is a national association and the focal point for the commercial grain industry within Australia. The role of GTA is to provide a framework across Industry to facilitate and promote the trade of grain. GTA facilitates trade and works to provide an efficient, equitable and open trading environment by providing leadership, advocacy, and commercial support services to the Australian grain value chain.

GTA Members are drawn from all sectors of the grain value chain from production to domestic end users and exporters. GTA has over 280 organisations as Members. Their businesses range from regional family businesses to large national and international trading/storage and handling companies who are involved in grain trading activities, grain storage, processing grain for human consumption and stock feed milling. A list of GTA Members is attached.

2.2 NWPGP

The National Working Party on Grain Protection (NWPGP) is the industry body responsible for providing management and leadership to industry in the areas of post-harvest storage, chemical use, market requirements and chemical regulations. The NWPGP is facilitated by Grain Trade Australia, and the Chair is funded by Grains Australia. It has members across the entire grain supply chain.

The NWGPG hosts an annual conference providing participants with the latest research and developments, in the area of post-harvest storage and hygiene, chemical usage and outturn tolerances, international and domestic market requirements, and regulations. It co-ordinates and provides government with industry views on chemicals in use on grain and associated products.

3. Regulation and Trade

Given the significance of grain exports to Australia and the focus of government and industry to continue to improve market access, GTA & NWPGP are of the view a guiding policy on implementing regulations to manage these compounds is needed in Australia. GTA believes regulations should cover all AEs, as customers would not be expected to differentiate requirements based on methane inhibitor or nitrification inhibitor products. GTA recognises there may need to be different forms of regulation for each but has limited scientific knowledge of the basis of any variation.

Industry management of market access involves a combination of industry management systems (i.e., sampling, testing) and where required, supported by effective and appropriate legislation. Where possible, Australian legislation should be aligned with relevant international legislation, such as Codex Committee on Pesticide Residues (CCPR), or in the absence of that legislation, other countries with similar legislative frameworks and policy to Australia.

Based on current information, industry does not anticipate there will be any grain chemical residue issues that risk market access for grain. Note this view has not been proven with real world data based on widespread Australian use of AEs. However, we are aware that some residues have been detected in grain from other international jurisdictions, prompting discussion in those countries and at CCPR.

We recognise the intent of any chemical regulation is to develop regulations (including MRLs) where there is a risk of residues arising and thus impacting trade. However, as other countries are increasingly focussed on AEs in general and continue to discuss implementation of regulations on these products, there is a risk Australia will be left behind.

It is also expected that as governments in destination countries develop their own legislation on AEs, or at the Codex Committee on Pesticide Residues (CCPR), some commercial transactions via grain contracts may require some form of declaration. While we understand this has not eventuated to date, it will be probable in the near future given the reliance of export customers on Australian grain being a safe product. Perceived risks of grain produced via the use of these products is probable, given some consumer concerns with regards to food safety, including transparency in how grain is produced and supplied. As such, GTA believes a self-regulatory approach will provide assurances to customers where regulations have been adopted in their own country.

4. Responsible Government Authority

GTA recognises the complexity and ambiguity associated with progressing regulations in Australia on agricultural emissions inhibitor products (AEIs). The discussion paper outlines a range of options for different regulatory agencies to manage this issue. It is important for ease of understanding regulations, management of developing and ongoing review of regulations and enforcement, that one government agency where possible leads the process. We recognise States and Territories have a role to play in enforcement of regulations and potentially in regard to AEs, however for consistency and simplicity we strongly encourage a national approach to policy, legislation and regulation rather than a state-based approach

GTA supports the Australian Pesticides and Veterinary Medicines Authority (APVMA) taking this lead role, via revision to its existing regulations and development of an appropriate MRL listing for all relevant AEs. Currently the APVMA is the lead regulator in Australia that approves chemical products and develops MRLs where required. Given overseas jurisdictions, including the CCPR has, or is in the process of developing various regulations (i.e., MRLs etc), the most logical fit for consistency sits with the APVMA.

GTA does not support FSANZ being the lead agency in this regard through adoption of MRLs following an application via import tolerances. Nor does GTA support FSANZ only adopting an MRL for AEIs on food consumed in Australia, where this can be done. As noted above, industry expects markets will require export grain to meet their future AEI MRLs (or CCPR AEIs). These may be different to Australian MRLs developed under the FSANZ process.

GTA recognises that the revision of any legislation and associated data requirements for new and existing products on the market, may be significant. GTA recommends, as per the potential process outlined in the discussion paper, that:

- Regulatory changes within the remit of the APVMA occur as soon as possible, noting the timelines outlined in the discussion paper.
- The APVMA co-ordinate development of data requirements for all AEI products with the industry responsible for those products, namely initially through Fertiliser Australia.
- To that end, given the significant impact on industry, effective consultation with all affected industries must occur in setting the legislation, to ensure the legislation is effective, efficient, warranted and enforceable.
- To minimise the cost and regulatory burden on industry, the APVMA ensure that where feasible and relevant overseas data, regulations be used when developing the Australian system. This of course, must recognise the potentially unique use patterns of these products in Australia.
- As this would be a new regulation, the APVMA coordinate with the States and Territories on all aspects of control of use. This guidance would provide consistency where possible across those jurisdictions, something that has been lacking in other areas of State/Territory based control of use legislation.
- There be a staged implementation of the regulations and all aspects such as data requirements for development of any MRLs where required. This would allow existing products commercially used in Australia, and those in development, to be used without any significant determinantal cost impost.
- Where possible, the APVMA should work with Fertiliser Australia to co-ordinate development of “joint data” covering each active ingredient, thereby reducing costly duplicated effort. This should also be considered after a review to determine the potential for minimal risk of residues and impacts on food safety.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this discussion paper. Please do not hesitate to contact GTA at any time.

Yours sincerely,

Pat O'Shannassy
CEO, Grain Trade Australia
